

Faculty member as microlibrarian:
Critical literacies for personal scholarly archiving

Ellysa Stern Cahoy, Penn State University Libraries

Critical literacies for personal archiving

Information Literacy Competency Standards for Higher Education. ACRL, 2000.

Information literacy is a set of abilities requiring individuals to "recognize when information is needed and have the ability to locate, evaluate, and use effectively the needed information."

Critical Literacies for personal archiving

ACRL
information literacy
competencies:

Find
Use Evaluate

Where is..

Curation
Archiving Preservation?

Critical Literacies for personal archiving

Marshall (2007) identified personal archiving user challenges:

Accumulation

Distribution

Curation

Long-term access

Critical Literacies for personal archiving

ACRL information literacy competencies:

Find

Use

Evaluate

Marshall's user challenges:

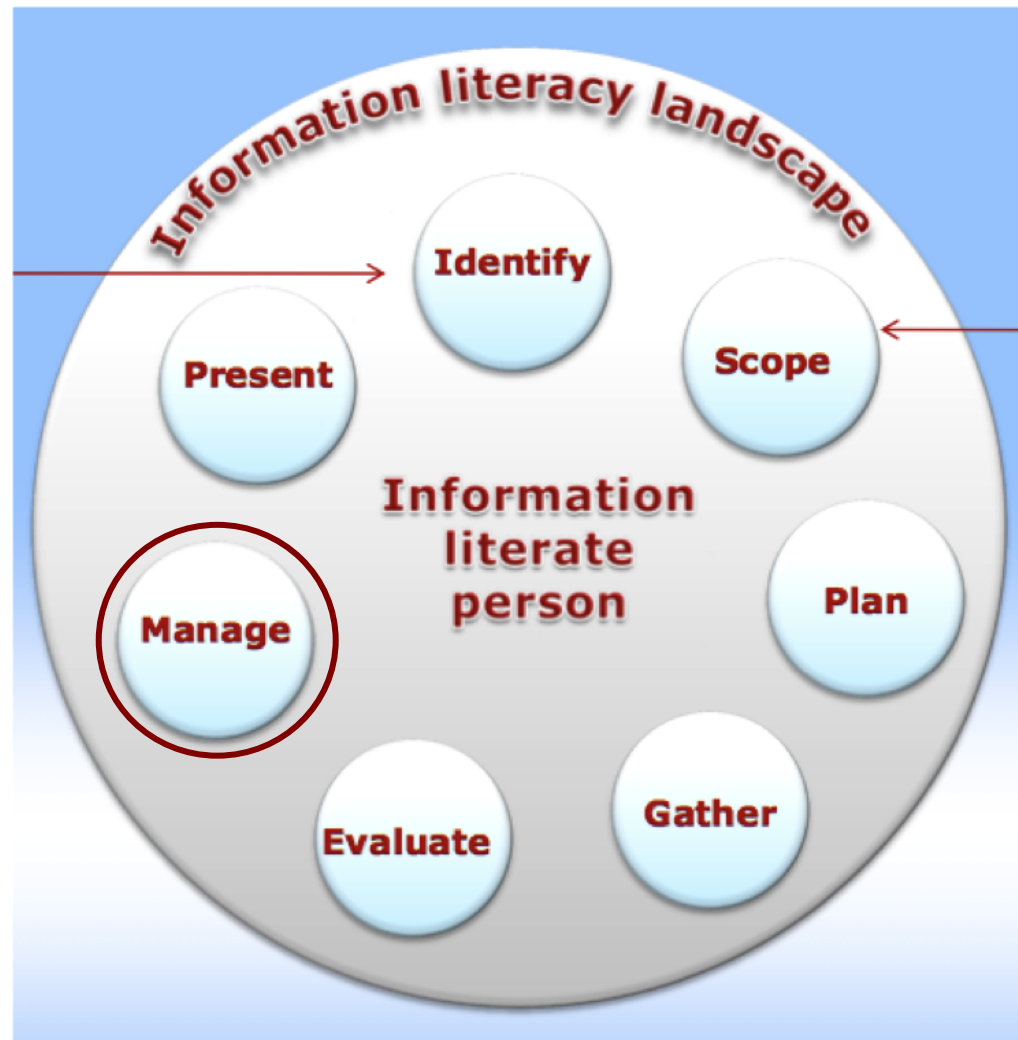

Accumulation

Distribution

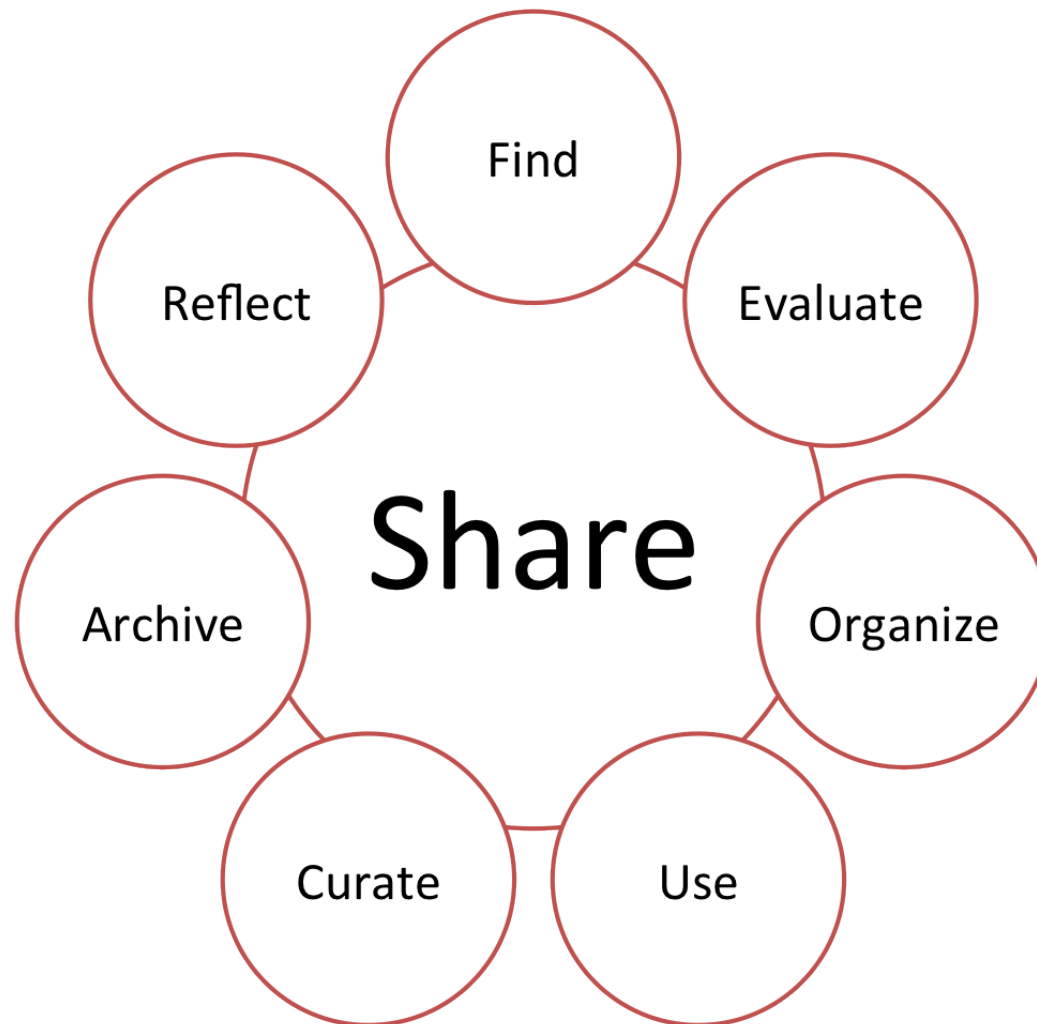

Curation

Long-term access

SCONUL Seven Pillars of Information Literacy

Information literacy competencies for the future

Cited Sources

Association of College & Research Libraries. (2000). ACRL | Information Literacy Competency Standards for Higher Education. Retrieved from <http://www.ala.org/ala/mgrps/divs/acrl/standards/informationliteracycompetency.cfm>

Marshall, C. C. C., Bly, S., Brun-Cottan, F., (2007). The Long Term Fate of Our Digital Belongings : Toward a Service Model for Personal Archives. Arxiv preprint arXiv:0704.3653. Retrieved from <http://cdsweb.cern.ch/record/1032046>

Society of College, National and University Libraries (SCONUL). (2011). The Seven Pillars of Information Literacy. Retrieved from http://www.sconul.ac.uk/groups/information_literacy/seven_pillars.html

Contact Info / Questions?

Ellysa Stern Cahoy
Penn State University Libraries
ellysa@psu.edu
bit.ly/ellysa